

THE COSMIC LATTICE PART 2 – KRYON

https://www.kryon.com/k\_26.html

Greetings, dear ones, I AM Kryon of magnetic service!

There is a potent energy here, which comes from family, which will flow through the crack in the veil to this very area. And as it does, it will fill this room with remembrance—a remembrance of love, and how things are when you are not here.

Indeed there is a sweet presence here and it matters not how large or small is the assemblage of the Human hearts that have gathered to feel it. We speak to you, one at a time. Some of you have heard this before, but we say this again: Those who flow in here now—this entourage, and this love essence of family—knows you. They know what you've been doing this year, last year, last lifetime, and the one before that. They know of the struggles of your life, and of the celebrations. They know of the joy, and of the sadness. Dear ones, you are dealing with family of the first order—a family that has more profound lineage with you even than the biological ones you share with the others on the planet. In many cases this spiritual family has also been your biological family over and over. There are Humans in this room, and reading this page that have enjoyed lifetimes with the family that greets you here. For that matter, there are also Humans in this room who have done the same and yet you look at them in the eye as you pass, going from here to there, and you don't even recognize them! Such is the duality. You incarnate into the same areas over and over again so that you can have a relationship with one another—so that the challenges can be built and designed so you can solve them. Now, here we are together again.

Feel the love that goes into this!

My partner has explained to you the best he could, why we sit at your feet and celebrate and honor this event [earlier in the seminar]. Year after year we have come before assemblages of Humans and have said, "Angels, each one," it is time to wash your feet. We say that because that is what family does with family. My partner and his partner, they sit upon an elevated platform so you can see them, and that is the only reason [speaking of Jan and Lee]. For like you, they are family. Like me, they are family. We are all the same. This planet is filled only with those authorized with permission to be here. You are family. As my partner has told you, your free spiritual choice is unique to this speck of this universe that you call Earth. Absolutely unique is your ability to choose your own spiritual level. No other planet has this attribute.

The potential for the planet is awesome beyond belief. It goes far beyond what you designed. It goes into an area where potentially you may discover closely who you are. The potential for that very spiritual evolution may present itself literally within three generations. It may create a Human Being that bears no spiritual resemblance to who you are now, and you are the front-runners - the first of the three generations. You are the old souls who stood in line to be here.

We say again to you, everyone who has even been alive on the planet is here again right now, plus the new ones, the "first timers." There are no first-timers in this room. Even the ones dragged here by friends, the ones rolling their eyes right now, are very old family. This is a sweet experience, dear ones. This is a reunion.

You think you picked up this book, or came to this room to hear the voice of the great Magnetic Master? No, you came to hear your sister, or your brother. That's the energy here, as you sit and listen, or read this. That energy says, "we know who you are, and within that knowledge is also the emotion of missing you! You've been here a long time." Ah, we get to see you when you come and go, you know. Those times have very brief. All of you turned right around and again you're here-fast. You didn't want to miss it. This time frame was the target, and it's what you planned for. This is the final measurement and you're going to be alive to see it - so the Spirit of Family comes in to sit next to you, and hug you and to talk physics [Kryon Humor].

Last year we presented at this time, energy information that was new. We're going to do it again. For the next few moments we will be talking about physics, energy, shapes, time, and mechanics. Within this process, don't be surprised when the information wraps itself back around, right to your biology and your Human heart. There is only one reason why we want to give you this. Spirit doesn't care about physics. Spirit cares that you understand how to stay here for as long as you can-in those bodies that sit in front of us-that are reading this-the ones you carry as angels pretending to be Humans. That's why, through the explanation and the transcriptions of this information, there will be knowledge developed, and it will dovetail with other knowledge that did not come from this stage, and it will verify itself.

This information will eventually find its way into areas that potentially are going to keep you alive. For it's the only way your bodies, which are perfect in their potential, are going to find perfection in your reality. The day is gone for fast turnovers and quick life times. There is no reason for you to continue that cycle. Are you paying attention? There is no reason. You have reached the end of the time-line. Now, here you sit-no accident that brings you to the chair to hear or read this, you know. It's almost like an appointment. Perhaps you only found out about this meeting yesterday? Really? You say you're here because somebody else brought you. Really? Welcome to the family, dear ones. Welcome to synchronicity! From this point forward, you can do anything you wish with this energy and this information. But even if you are in disbelief now, it doesn't matter to us. The welcome is still valid because we know who you are, and the love for you is as great as it is for the one next to you.

You're going to have to understand more about energy in order to facilitate life on the planet. You're going to have to understand more about energy to facilitate the biology on the planet. So in the next few moments we're going to deliver a treatise which we will call, "The Cosmic Lattice, Part II." It's no accident that the first Cosmic Lattice information was given in this energy as well (New Hampshire, November 1997). Precious, it is-an energy postured for this information, it is. That is why it is given now.

This is the channeling designated to be transcribed, so therefore I am talking right now to those reading this. I can say to you reading it, "We are in the NOW. You are not reading something that happened awhile ago. You are reading about an energy that can pour into your life right now, as sure as it also can for those hearing it with their ears. Although we do not see the future; we measure the potentials of your time line; we know who has picked up this book. We know who is looking at it right now' as certain as we know who is hearing this message."

We told you much about the Cosmic Lattice the last time we were together. We told you that the lattice is an energy that pervades the universe and is consistent. We told you that it passes through all matter, and that it is available all the time. We told you that it is a physics staple of the way things work throughout all the universe that is visible. We told you that light is slow, compared to the communication of the Lattice, and that even though there is a mechanical attribute of the lattice (which we are going to discuss), communication is almost instantaneous all through it. The speed of energy from one end of the universe to the other is almost instant. (Actually there are no ends)

The cosmic energy event you see taking place 12 billion light years away did not happen 12 billion years ago. There is a communication attribute that indicates that it is happening now, to correspond with your millennium shift. It is not something that took place 12 billion light years ago. (See "The Meaning of Life," as channelled in Kryon Book Seven)

We gave you elementary information of the shape of the Lattice. Now we're going to fill in the cracks in the information we gave you last time. We're going to tell you what the real shape of the lattice is. We're going to tell you the construction of it, the best we can in terms that are non-scientific, which my partner can deliver. We're also going to give you several attributes of the lattice, and we're going to tell you how to use it. Then we're going to tell you the real miracle, but the physics has to be shared first.

This information will tie together the science of the facilitators in this room, who have processes that would seem to be dichotomous (speaking of the physics of Dr. Todd Ovokaitys, and the energy work of Peggy Dubro of the EMF Balancing Technique, both in attendance). Finally you may understand how the Cosmic Lattice is indeed the very essence of the energy of healing.

Again it may not surprise you that we go to the biggest of the big, before we get to the smallest of the small, in order to talk about Humans. And so before the teaching we say, "let the foot washing begin!" In these moments that we speak about physics, we also are speaking of love. Some of you are going to feel the pressure of love during this time, and though you may not understand any of the science, you may feel the pressure, physically, and the washing-the pressing of the hugging, some on the head, and some on the shoulders. Some of you will feel the temperature shift, and you will feel the energy in this room as this new information is delivered in love. This time of discovery is given because you desire it, and because you've earned it. That's why you sit in the chairs.

The Cosmic Lattice is not a net. It is not singular. It is not one dimension. If it pervades the universe, as we have said, then it has to be everywhere, and indeed the lattice is everywhere. We wish to reveal the shape: The actual shape is of cells are closed compartments. That should not shock or surprise you. It mimics your body. For now, we will call the cells, "energy cells." They are in a honeycomb shape, and these shapes (the cells) each have twelve sides. Each energy cell of the cosmic lattice all around you remains unseen, but you will be able to eventually measure its energy. This lattice is a structure, whose parts do not touch. Each one of these twelve-sided honeycombed energy-cells, which are everywhere, do not touch one another. Yet they exist side by side, as though they do touch. They even look like they do, but they do not, for there is something that holds them apart.

There is a mechanical physics attribute that is going on within the nucleus of the atom. This very same mechanical "law" which holds the lattice cells apart, is the same attribute that is responsible for unequally polarized pieces of atomic nuclear structure being held together. It's important that you understand that these lattice cells never touch one another, and there is a reason why they do not. It is all part of the communication within the lattice. Energy transfer within the lattice also mimics physics at the smallest levels - also being atomic structures that do not touch. It also mimics the most elegant part of your body-the part that is responsible for your thinking-for your memory-for your remembrance, and for your reactions-the Human brain. The synapse parts (the wiring) within that organ do not touch either. These are the ways of the physics attributes that transmit (or relay) energy. It is not new. Look for it, for it's everywhere. It is also the common structure of the lattice.

Now we're going to give you some attributes of these cells, and we're going to ask you to follow along. Some of you, especially those who are science minded, will be entertained. The rest of you who are not interested in science may just sit, for we're just going to wash your feet.

The Cosmic Lattice is balanced, but it is not quiet. The lattice has astounding power. It has a flow of energy that I cannot explain to you, for there is no paradigm model for it yet in your thinking. Therefore, you would not easily understand. The lattice has vents that we can best describe as necessary for the flow of energy. It balances the slight inequity of the polarity. The vents also have to do with time, which we will tell you more about in a moment. You will always find two vents together. One will be prominent, the other will be secondary. You might graphically and clearly see one, but you will have to look carefully to see its partner. There are always two. This is an axiom or physical rule of the lattice energy, and of the universe.

The vents are usually at the center of the galaxies. The distance between the vents determines the spin direction of a galaxy, and speed of matter around its center. It is a classic push and pull scenario, and matter responds to it. Now, here is something you will not understand at all: The vents are very necessary for the balance of your universal energy. The vents are also energy portals, (drains, to you), and are where the front of the lattice touches the back. The back of the lattice holds a universe whose vents are opposite. Note: This IS NOT an alternate universe. It's also yours. Although this may bring you a paradox at the moment, those in your future, especially reading this transcription who have good scientific intuition, will discover the physics that will validate the meaning of this information.

Therefore, at the center of your own galaxy there is a pair of vents, one of which you can see if you chose. The other one is hiding. But the vents always appear in pairs. This is dramatic; it is powerful; it is the lattice balancing itself.

We're going to give you an attribute of the Cosmic Lattice and the energy within it, which is difficult to explain. We're going to discuss the mechanics of the speed of transmission of energy within the lattice, and we are going to show you how the speed of the Lattice is stellar compared to the slow transmission of light.

This discussion of speed has a metaphor, an analogy that exists on your own planet. Some of you are aware that if you were to take something physical and force it through the water in your ocean, it would be fairly slow going. The water is thick, and offers a medium that requires a great amount of energy to force something through it. Think of the fastest things in your oceans. They would be some of the fast fish, and even some of your mechanical devices [submarines]. But they and their speed, pale in comparison to the speed of giant ocean waves created by the energy of an earthquake.

Many of you are aware that the speed of quake-generated waves in your ocean approaches the speed of sound itself! That's how fast it goes. Consider how much energy it would take to propel something the size of a mountain at the speed of sound, through your ocean. Many would say it could not be done, yet waves seem to do it easily.

The reason is because a wave is not the transportation of MATTER from one place to another (like a fish or a submarine or the matter in a mountain). The wave is the transportation of ENERGY from one place to another. As you know, the molecules of water bump into one another. One bumps into another, and bumps into another, and the speed of the bumping transmission is very, very fast.

Although the metaphor has its limits as we compare the two, in essence that is exactly what takes place on the lattice on a far, far grander scale. Light is the transportation of matter-photons in space. It might have a wave-like appearance, but its speed is limited due to its mass, and the speed is relatively slow. Similar to a fish or a mechanical device in the water, light is the transportation of matter through a substance. It's when the lattice cells bump together that they create patterns (waves) due to their bumping, at a speed that is almost instant through billions and billions of light years. Not only is light slow, but it must also penetrate through other matter, not just the emptiness of space. There is dust, gas, and magnetics, all which block and bend it. The transmission of energy from the lattice is clean, fast, and almost instant throughout its vastness. That's because the energy medium is uniform, and transmits with a system that easily recognizes what is being passed within in (much like the wave does with water molecules). Now we have given you a mechanic attribute of how energy is transmitted in the real universe.

There are three rules of physics for the universal Lattice, but none of them will respond to what you have called Newtonian physics or the relative physics of Einstein. For Newtonian and relative physics is mostly about the behavior of matter. The physics rules that I'm going to give you are about energy, and they are different-very, very different.

The speed of energy moving through the Lattice is always the same. It never varies. It is a constant law of energy physics. It is the speed at which the Lattice cells bump together, and this creates waves of energy whose speed is always the same. That is the first one.

Here is the second, and it's tricky.

It always takes the same amount of time for energy to transverse the internal distance of one lattice cell. (An absolute time period to go from one side to the other, inside of a lattice cell). This time segment is always the same, and never varies.

The third axiom is this: the cells have a varying size. That is to say, there are areas in the universe where the energy cells of the cosmic lattice are large, and other areas where they are small.

"Wait Kryon," you might say. "You just got through saying that it takes a known amount of time to transverse the distance of a cell. If some are large, and some are small, won't that make a difference in the time it takes? After all, you are changing the distance!"

No, the time is always the same.

"Then," you might also say, "something has to give. It doesn't make sense to take the exact same time to go a short distance or a long distance, if the speed has to be the same."

You're right. Here's where we challenge you to understand that the paradox of this is that the time elements, as measured, must change! Therefore, when you move into an area of space where the cells are smaller, you're going to receive a different measurement of time than when they're larger. This will explain to you what we have said in the past, why your astronomers see "impossible physics" through their telescopes-physics that cannot occur according to the assumed rules. They are looking at physics in a time frame that has smaller or larger cells than your own.

Therefore the third axiom is the only variable one, and it is time. The units of time, change in relationship to the size of the lattice cells.

Now let us discuss the use of the cosmic lattice, physics wise (not biologically). Dear ones, we previously told you the lattice null energy is balanced to zero. We told you that each cell has tremendous power, but it is balanced by another power along side it, which has opposite polarity. This "nulls" out the apparent potential, so that it all appears invisible to you. The energy, therefore, appears to be zero.

It's when the lattice is deliberately unbalanced that you really get to see the power. If you could only understand how to manipulate the null so you could unbalance it just slightly, the result would be tremendous free energy. Let us say again, that one of the reasons this would be safe for you to accomplish, is because none of the cells touch each other. You will not have a chain reaction, like you have in your nuclear matter science. So you can capture the energy of one, two, three, or as many cells as you wish, when you learn how to manipulate them.

Some have asked about the null - about the polarity. What kind of energies are there that would oppose each other so well? Let us give you an answer that might be difficult for you to understand at this time, but through discovery and with time, it will make sense. Opposite energy attributes that create the null are polarized energies. They are almost mirror images of one another that together create a quiet, zero null. This is part of the balance of the universe, and is everywhere. It is also this way in light and matter. It is also true, however, that the "mirror-image" of energy, light and matter is not perfectly balanced. Due to the bias of your "kind" of universe (call it the "positive" one if you like), the "anti-energy," or mirror image of the positive, is only slightly less powerful. It is this slight unbalance that creates the vents that we spoke of before. The vents are necessary to allow for the balance to be maintained. Otherwise, the major "null" posturing would not last long, and the lattice would be constantly unbalanced. The vents, therefore "drain" off the slight unbalance of the bias.

The last physics attribute is one that we will only hint at. The Lattice is indeed the cosmic constant that has been looked for in science forever. There are those who have asked, "what is the actual mechanical connection between the Cosmic Lattice and matter?" Let's just say that it is the characteristic of this constant that "tunes the strings" of the music of matter. It sets the frequencies for the smallest parts, and those frequencies vary depending on where they are in the cosmos.

We would like you to eventually understand how to manipulate the Lattice, so that you may pull on its energy. Understand that this can be done anywhere at any time on Earth, or in space. It is done completely and totally with magnetics-active magnetics. It is accomplished with the creation of carefully placed patterns of large magnetic fields, which must be active (created with energy, not naturally existing). When you discover how this works, you will also find that this particular process on the planet is not new, and that your experimenters have actually done it before.

During the times it was done before, no one understood what was happening. The process was far beyond your ability to control, and you didn't even know the principles...yet you tried it anyway. Now you have the ability to control the experiment and therefore create disciplined and sustained energy, seemingly out of nothing (the null). Like so many other physics processes, however, it is going to take a tremendous amount of energy in order to unbalance even one cell's null attribute. So you're going to have a vast amount of energy pumped into the experiment before you can see the results. Once you understand how to "prod" the null to unbalance itself, you will be rewarded with a steady flow of energy, far beyond what you put into it. This is accomplished, since you create your own tiny "vent." An unbalanced cell creates a situation where the other cells around it will try to "feed" energy to the one that is unbalanced. This creates a tap that will pull upon the Lattice indefinitely, as long as your work matches the properties the lattice expects to see. I know this sounds like science fiction, but eventually it can be THE energy source for your planet.

Here's how it works. Two magnetic fields together, postured in the correct way-a way that is very three-dimensional in your thinking process-will create a "designed magnetic field" that is very specific. It's one you have never seen, and does not exist naturally. Start with trying many magnetics fields, postured against one another-of unequal force and pattern, and at right angles. Don't make any assumptions. Think freely. Done in the right fashion, these two fields will create a third pattern, which is unique and is the product of the original two. This third custom created pattern is the one you want to deal with, and is the one that has the potential of manipulating the lattice. One you have created it, you will know of its special qualities by how dramatically it changes the physics around it. It won't be subtle in its exposition - believe me. You will know when you have it.

Here is a caution. Keep this experiment away from your body! Keep the experiment in check with your scientific methods. Go slowly. Understand what you're seeing before you go to the next step. Do not expose yourself to any magnetic fields. Remotely conduct all energy experiments. Remember that magnetism also plays an important part within your body.

Here is another. Understand that if you unbalance the lattice too grandly and too greatly, you will have a time displacement, for the process also involves the property of TIME. We don't mean that you have to wait for it. We mean that one of the actual physical players in the creative process of unbalancing the Lattice is the manipulation of the time-frame of matter (a little known attribute of every particle of matter in the universe). This is not time travel, but time displacement. It is where you are actually addressing tiny parts of matter, and changing the time-frame they are in. When the inequity of time-frames meet one another (matter mixed up with differing time attributes), the result is a displacement of distance. Although there is no horrendous danger for the earth within this time displacement, it can and will affect the local situation within the experiment. In other words, it can create a matter-distorting effect, completely stopping the experiment, and actually dislocating the parts. We're not going to say any more about this at the moment, but the more astute scientific minds reading this will go to the next obvious step, and the answer is "yes," the lattice is also the key to quick travel of large physical objects - even of very short distances.

Now it is time to talk about the miracle-to reveal why we're here. Some of you have gone through this science discussion while we washed your feet, only to wonder how it relates to your personal lives. Physics? Science? So where does the regular light worker fit into this?

This is the part where those in this room working with the Lattice energy will more fully understand how the Human body responds to what they are doing, for the Lattice is truly available now for each person here. My partner has to be careful in this next statement, for it has to be very accurate.

[pause]

The Cosmic Lattice communicates with Human biology through a series of magnetic resonant frequencies, which land upon a twelve-segmented crystalline structure. We have not said the words "crystalline structure" for transcription before. We have not exposed this information before, and we do it now because the knowledge is critical, and the energy here will now allow for us to tell you about it.

We're going to finally reveal the crystalline structure, which is around the coded structure that you call DNA. Remember that we define DNA differently than you do. Your word DNA actually got its name from the two strands, which are chemical, and which you can physically see. Our definition refers to the 12-stranded coding for the Human body, only two strands of which are chemical. The DNA-all the strands of it- are an encoding tool. The strands are instruction sets, and we have previously told you that some of them are magnetic. Some of them are also what you would call "spiritual." (But to us, they also have a physical property.) These strands contain all of the coding for your whole life, even those carried over from the life before this one. But there's more. The memory part of your life's system is separate from the encoding. It is the "stem," and is the crystalline structure. Many of you might say, "why would it be called crystalline? Will we find something that is crystal in there?"

The naming is metaphoric, yet there is real physics involved that is crystalline-like. In your crystal work, even at the basic level, you have realized that crystals do something special. Do you remember what that is? They hold energy. Therefore they retain energy-pattern memory. Now you're beginning to see how the computer of the Human body works. For the crystalline structure, which we would call the sheath around the encoding DNA, is the memory of your life force. It's the memory of every past life you've ever had. It's the Akashic record for you. It is the record of past and present contracts. It represents all of the things you have been through. That crystalline structure, therefore, is also spiritual. It is all that you are, memory-wise. There isn't one instruction-set there, however. The instructions are within the I2 DNA strands, and the crystalline information is "wrapped" around the DNA package as the memory core-the stem-ready to pass needed information to the instruction sets. The crystalline structure also contains the perfect blueprint of a Human Being...also in memory.

Now, as you might be realizing, there is constant communication between the I2 DNA strands and the I2 segmented crystalline memory. Right now that communication isn't very good. On this earth-on this planet-the communication between these vital parts in your body is less than 15 percent efficient. The biology therefore, is not very "smart" in this area. There are wonderful healing and life extending attributes within your cellular structure that will never show themselves without the efficient "remembering" from the crystalline sheath. The communication between the polarity of the encoding mechanism and the crystalline remembering-core is poor. This, dear ones, is a carefully constructed restriction that tempers your duality. It has been this way since the beginning, and is mainly responsible for the fact that you remember almost nothing about: (1) Who you were; (2) Why you are here; (3) The fact that you are eternal; (4) The spiritual test that you sit in, and (5) Who your real family is. That's not all. In addition to all these spiritual items, there is the unfacilitated biology! This poor communication, which was carefully postured for you (by you), also: (1) Doesn't remember how to regenerate efficiently; (2) Is wide open to attack from common earthly disease because part of it does not remember how to totally work; (3) Lives a short life because parts of it that are actually there, stop working during life, or are thwarted chemically.

What do you suppose "talks" to the crystalline memory? What do you think helps posture that balance of duality that keeps things inefficient? The magnetic grid system of the Earth!

We wouldn't be here to move the magnetic grid unless you had asked for it-unless the 1987 measurement had shown the potential of great change, dear ones. Family, I'm talking to you! It is the communication between those two elements in the body that is the core of how close you can get to your Higher Self! Full remembrance at 100% from the encoding of your biology, would create an instant ascension status. You would walk around carrying your full potential...and that is an awesome thought.

There are those on this planet who are here in almost their full potential. Did you know that? They have to be here for the spiritual balance of the planet (as we have mentioned to you before). Some of them you know of, and we speak of the Avatar energy that is represented by a few very special Humans living right now. Full communication of the principles we have been discussing allows for miracles! The creation of matter out of nothing-knowing how physics works-knowing how love works. It's a powerful combination, you know. Put them together and you can manifest anything; Full power over the physical-full power over your life span-full power over your own biology! Take a good look at what the Avatars are able to do - that's who you all are!

Every single Human Being in the room and reading this, has the potential for all knowledge. It resides in the crystalline-a twelve-segmented crystalline structure that wraps itself around the encoding (DNA), and the encoding is just waiting for a better communication.

We told you many times during the "family" series of channellings that you were created equal, and perfect, and eternal. The only thing that keeps you from these things is the duality, and the poor efficiency of your current biology. All of it can be changed with better communication between the crystalline structure, and the DNA. As the memory transmission is increased to the instruction sets, the body reacts, and by "the body," we mean the whole Human.

We want to tell you where that better communication is coming from. It's from the new position of the grid system of Earth. That is why we've moved it, and that is why our group came in 1989. Now you understand. Remember when we told you that no Human Being can exist outside of the magnetic grid of this Earth? The magnetic grid of this Earth is what makes the communication possible that postures your duality, and your very enlightenment. Without the magnetic grid there is no communication. Some day, your experiments in space will show this. The Human must have a magnetic complement to live in. Without it, over a period of months and years, the Human Being will die.

Elements on Earth come together for life, you know. Just look at your planet. Do you think you can just walk on it, live on it, and hope it behaves itself while you're here? It knows who you are, just as I do-Just as the grid does. There is intelligence there. Therefore the Earth is in cooperation with your very enlightenment. Just ask the indigenous people who came before you. At the core level of their spiritual beliefs lays the honor of the "dirt of the Earth." They knew.

There is more about the communication of the grids, and it involves still another crystalline structure. This will be given at a later communication.

Your DNA (the twelve strands) contains instruction sets for a nine hundred and fifty-year life span of your body. Currently, much of this encoding isn't working. The encoding isn't working since it has no information from the memory core (crystalline structure). Within the core memory, is information that will help the DNA chemistry "remember" how everything works.

Right now, your science is finally beginning to poke and prod your biology and to stimulate artificially, the DNA. They are doing it with magnetics! This approach to health is a very real return to the mechanical processes within the "Temple of Rejuvenation," which we told you about some years ago. Magnetics, and the energy of the Cosmic Lattice, helps to posture your duality and your enlightenment. It also helps keep the balance of your crystalline memory which is currently in an inefficient mode, just as you designed it for your test on the planet.

Now things are changing.

There are those in this room (speaking of both Todd Ovokaitys and Peggy Dubro), who are slowly discovering the Lattice "tie in" to cellular biology. One is discovering it through physics, and one is discovering it through the power of knowledge and intent. Both are working with magnetics at some level!

In both cases, what is changing is that the DNA is starting to remember! The efficiency of the communications is being enhanced and here-to-for hidden parts and pieces of the biological and spiritual DNA are awakening. Remember what awakening is? It means that the knowledge is there - just asleep. The mechanics are there - just waiting for more efficient instructions.

Let me give you an example: Every cell of your body is designed for self-diagnostics. Every cell is designed to know whether it is correct or incorrectly in balance with the whole. Every cell is supposed to know that, but much of this information is hidden from it. The disease you call cancer easily fools this poorly functioning part of your cellular structure. If this part was working properly, cancer would not exist.

Part of the reawakening is the marriage, through magnetics, of the core memory and the encoding. When the rest of the instructions are known, which will allow for the cell's full intelligent knowledge using self diagnostics, it will "recognize" itself to be out of balance and not reproduce. Only the healthy ones around it will be allowed to. In addition, it may actually commit "cell suicide" by itself! That's the full design. Look for it, for this is a well known biological trait. Now it's time to enhance it. Think of it as a tremendous enhancement of your immune systems and that's just one attribute of the "whole Human" imprint.

Some of you reading and hearing this think we are only talking about science. NO! We are actually discussing self-healing...long life, and a whole new actively changing Human biological paradigm! For whether it is through intent of the Human consciousness, or whether it's physical facilitation through chemistry or physics, your DNA now has permission to change and dear ones, that's what the II:II was about! That's when you said, "yes" to the very item we are discussing now.

Celebrate! Listen: when the communication between the crystalline structure and the DNA structure becomes closer together, you can form bones where there were none before--there is creation of matter--you can have disease leave the body! The cells become more intelligent. You enhance the biology and the miracle comes from within!

Healers, are you listening? Everything you are doing in your work ends up helping to bring these two biological attributes together within the cellular structure of the one that sits in front of you asking to be healed. Why do some get healed, and some do not?

The answer is complex, but one of the main catalysts for miraculous healing is pure intent. The next time you're working with someone, make sure that the intent is there--make certain that they really understand what they are doing. When true permission is given, and the intent is there, healing will occur. Some of the most magnificent healing you have on your planet right now is Human with Human, with no one touching anyone at all. It's profound. It has the properties of being miraculous and it is the connection with the Lattice. This, therefore is the explanation of where that energy comes from, because the Lattice is what is actually supplying all the magnetics. When you finally understand where magnetic fields come from, you will know of what I speak. They are an attribute of matter and the Lattice.

Some of you remember the story of Michael Thomas, and the channelling of the story, The Journey Home (Kryon Book Five). You might remember that Michael was told that he would meet the finest and grandest angel of them all, in the final house of his journey - and he did. In that Seventh House the grand angel was revealed to him, and it was gold, and it had his face! As Michael Thomas sat with that angel, he could barely breathe because of the divinity that was around him. Realizing that the biology and divinity don't mix, he was having a hard time on his knees. Michael was granted, at that time, a physical dispensation around him so that he could exist while he looked at the grand one that was his Higher Self.

When the great golden one was finished giving Michael Thomas information, he told Michael that there was to be no more teaching. They both had reached a time similar to what we have reached together right now. There's no more teaching in this message. Instead, all there is right now is love.

In The Journey Home story, the great gold angel asked Michael Thomas to turn around and sit upon the staircase, which the angel had just descended. Michael Thomas did so, and the angel said, "Michael Thomas, this has nothing to do with teaching. The learning is over. What I'm about to do is just to love you." As you might recall, the great grand one-the sacred family member-the higher self of the Human, took Michael Thomas' feet one at a time, and washed them. Michael wept.

You see, this is the partnership between a Human Being and his sacred family. This is the partnership between Spirit and Human Being. This is the message of Kryon. All the physics that was discussed today can be given to science. The love is the real teaching! The family is here-a family who knows you. Messages are given to enhance your life. Processes and procedures are given all over the planet for you, because you're going to have to live a lot longer to accomplish your work. And what is your work, you might ask? It is to hold your light!

Want to know the difference between you right now, as we wash your feet, and the Indigo children we've spoken about? That crystalline structure we have discussed today is just a little closer to their encoding than yours is. Those children come in from the other side knowing that they are royalty. Those children come in with a spiritual evolution that you did not have, and that is why they seem to be such misfits in your society. They know things that you didn't know, and they feel it at the cellular level. Some of them are actually creating their own culture because you are not listening to them. You are not giving them credit for being evolved. You are not giving them honor. Oddly enough, you are treating them like children!

Right now it's a time of foot washing, is it not? Most of you know that these are the closing moments of the channelling, yet we continue to wash your feet. We've poured energy into this room and also to those of you reading this. It's sacred family energy from the entourage that has come from beyond the veil. It has been delivered from those who love you-who pass between these aisles and these chairs and who give you hugs-those at your feet right now.

As we arise and take those bowls of our tears of joy, we withdraw from this place. If we could say that such an emotion exists on this side of the veil, we would say there's sadness in our retreat. For we are family, who wish to stay here! If you allowed it, we would be here in this room, or where you sit, for days. That's how family feels about family!

Let this time of preciousness go on record as being a time a great reunion-a time when Humans and angels got together and recognized themselves as family, and loved one another for it. There will be a time when I see you again in the Hall of Honor.

When that time comes, I will refer to this day, and I will say, "remember that time in the place you called New Hampshire? It was precious ... precious."

And so it is.

Kryon